

Leadership in Affordable Housing Certificate

Develop a solid knowledge of the economics of affordable housing as well as the key political and economic issues that created the affordable housing crisis. Then, armed with that knowledge, identify opportunities to address the issue.

- Demonstrate an understanding of the economics of affordable housing in rental and home ownership.
- Learn the impacts of government policies on equity and affordability in the housing market.
- Seek strategies for leaders to collaborate with government, industry, and the nonprofit sector to address the problem of affordable housing.

See details and registration at hamline.edu/affordable-housing.

Program overview

Location:

Hamline's West End location
(St. Louis Park)

Schedule:

January–December 2021, meeting one Thursday, 1–8 p.m., and one Friday, 9 a.m.–3 p.m., per month (see hamline.edu/affordable-housing for dates)

Courses (8 credits total):

The Affordable Housing Crisis
(4 credits, January–April)

Leadership in Affordable Housing Policy
(4 credits, August–December)

Tuition:

$3,100 (meals included), payable in two installments in January and August

Instructors:

Lyn Burton, president and executive director of Affordable Housing Connections

Barbara Dacy, community development and affordable housing policy expert

Center for Public Administration and Leadership

The Center for Public Administration and Leadership provides professional development and networking opportunities for public servants looking to make a difference in their workplaces and communities. To fulfill this mission, the center partners with professional associations and sector experts to design in-depth training based on the real needs of—and challenges facing—public sector leaders. As a result, participants in the center's broad array of programs—certificates, conferences, and seminars—develop skills and strategies to further their commitment and service to the common good through forward-thinking dialogue about current issues and trends in public service.

Hamline School of Business Public Administration Programs

Hamline has been an innovator in public administration education for more than 30 years, with its master's and doctoral degrees and certificates. Programs take a theory-to-practice approach so that you can immediately apply what you learn. Working with instructors who have years of field experience and are passionate about teaching, you will build your expertise, improve your organization, and enrich your community. Hamline's public administration graduates comprise a network of more than 1,000 alumni.

Credit options

Participants are eligible to earn graduate or continuing studies credit. Graduate-level credits from this certificate may be applied toward the Master of Public Administration or Master of Nonprofit Management.

Scholarships and discounts

Scholarships for this certificate are available through Affordable Housing Connections. For more information, visit ahcinc.net.

Hamline School of Business partners with many cities, counties, state agencies, and professional organizations to offer scholarships for its graduate degree programs.

10% discounts on all certificates and events are available for employees of our Learning Partners.

Questions? Contact the Center for Public Administration and Leadership at 651-523-2284 or hsb@hamline.edu.